JAPS ATTACK IN 14-MILE BATTLE FRONT

General Engagement Begins at Sunrise and Is Still Raging.

ISSUE NOT YET DECIDED

By Publishers Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The Tagblatt has a dispatch from Liao-Yang reporting that a decisive battle began in that vicinity at 4:30 o'clock this morning. The Japanese attacked in a fourteen-mile semicircle. Neither side had secured any visible advantage after six hours of colossal slaughter.

RUSSIAN LOSS 10,000; ROUTED

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A telegram from New-Chang to the Italian Militaire at Home states that the Japanese have made thirteen successful attacks on the Russian positions around Liao-Yang since August 14.

HOW JAPS HAVE TRAPPED KUROPATKIN.

CONDUCTOR, ON TRIAL CHARGES ALLEGED CROOKEDNESS UP TO "SPOTTER."

At the trial of Alexander Crockett, of Wakefield, the Boston & Northern Street Railway conductor who was arrested on August 22, charged with being implicated in the transfer frauds, the defendant testified that the alleged crookedness in his methods was due entirely to Donald C. Hines, who was working as a conductor on the road, but who was actually, as admitted by Attorney Weir for the prosecution, a detective in the employ of the company.

The trial opened today in the Malvern court before Judge Brewster. After the prosecution had closed Crockett took the stand. There were three counts in the charge against him, each alleging the fact that he had received money from the company.

any of $2, Crockett said that Hines appeared him and asked him if he would transfer, and he had refused. Hines then asked him, he said, if he would buy some transfers, and he again refused.

"Then Hines asked me if I would give him fifty cents and I did, because there was no day card, except the cash tickets and the dog's office, and I thought that Hines might be a spotter."

"Swapping transfers is the only way of making any money on the job," Hines said as much as $2 a week that way."

Asked for the defense, Crockett Hines was a detective employed by the company, and Crockett Weir, for the prosecution, admitted that such was the fact, and that Hines had been in the company for some time.

COLCHESTER, Ct., Aug. 30.—Sheriff Jackson, of New London County; the State Attorney, Solomon Lucas, and Coroner Brown came to Colchester to-day and assumed personal charge of the systematic search for additional victims of the "murder farm" of Gerben B. Marx, the octogenarian farmer, awaiting trial, charged with killing John Roddecki his former farm hand.

The finding of a second body, that of Paul Pukowicz, another farm hand, murdered and his mutilated and dismembered body buried in sacks as was that of Roddecki, has aroused the entire community, and it is believed now that at least two more men have been slain by Marx. One of these is a Polish Jew pedler, who made his home with Marx for a short time, and the other is a farm hand known as "Poli." Both disappeared strangely, and the peak of the old pedler was found in Marx's home. He declared that he had bought the peak.

With Marx in the Norwich Jail is his young wife, held as an accessory. According to the Police Roddecki was killed in a room adjoining one in which she slept, and she is charged with having assisted in the mutilation and burial of the remains.

Pukowicz is thought to have been slain by Marx about two years ago, while the old man occupied the Able farm, in the woods of which the body was found.

In America Ten Years.
Marx came to America from Poland ten years or so ago. He has lived in Colchester eight years. In coming here he came as a friend, and this little village is largely populated with Polish Holo-wers, who are of a very orderly and industrious character. There is no manufacturing industry here. At one time there was a rubber factory, but that has been gone several years.

Farming and horse trading make up the principal occupation of the 1,000 people who live here now. The farm occupied by Marx until about a year ago, now known as the Marx farm, is about seven miles from the village on the Norwich road.

It is there that the body was found this week, and where the police are having the place dug over in the expectation of finding other mutilated remains. Last summer Marx moved to Able farm, located three or four miles north Colchester village.

SENATOR HOAR COMFORTABLE; MORE ACTIVE

Special to the Boston Americans.

WORCESTER, Aug. 30.—Senator George F. Hoar stood the little strain of his seventy-eight birthday, extremely bravely, and is comfortable today.

"He had a good night and awakened feeling comfortable this morning. He is now asleep," was the first morning bulletin given by the BOSTON AMERICAN to the Board of Police.

EMMONS SAYS BOSTON POLICE ARE BRAVE MEN

"You, our officers in general are ready to do their duty, even at risk of their lives," said Judge Emonns, this morning, in a reference to the daring arrest of Patrick M. Hinderwell, in stopping two maddened horses on Meridian street, last Boston, yesterday.

"There have been a number of similar cases in the past, and if the facts merit it, it will be brought to the attention of the Board of Police."

"It is only in cases where exceptional bravery is displayed that a medal is given."

"The Boston police certainly display as much courage as any force in the country."

3 DAYS LOST IN MAINE WOODS

Special to the Boston Americans.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 30.—Gray Wolf, of this city, who was lost in the Maine woods with John Read, of Camden, has returned to his home to recuperate after his terrible experience. In telling the story of the three days, Mr. Wolf said that he had to eat during that time were two snakes and what berries they could find.
